

Nay, nay thy wit's full twice, and the right was thrice, or of wit am I be-reft?

sound, thou must turn thee round. f Round, round, round, round, faith, when

p Nay, have a care, 'twas five I said.
"straight" begins? then alleys six!

f
cresc.
Nay, six, I swear, nay, six, I swear, round, round, round,
cresc.

So mark thy left and mark thy round, 'tis my head that spins.

So plague thy left and right, thou wilt keep thy line, thou wilt count thee nine, take a cross-path plague thy right, with thy "keep thy line," and thy "count thee nine"; and thy here, take a cross-path there, pass a hos - tel door, and, but set good store cross-path here, and thy cross-path there, and thy hos - tel door, and I wot not more, cresc.

on all my speech, thou'l mend thy plight till, ho - ly monk or not, this night
