400 SOLOS FOR C INSTRUMENT

Recorder Flute Violin Oboe

Clark Kimberling
2016

Copy your selections into a bound notebook and use them it as you wish – but

- Keep attribution to the composer (top of each solo page)
- Keep the copyright notice (bottom of each page)

Solo 1 of this collection was composed for a children’s Epiphany pageant early in 2016. Other solos followed, and they are presented here in the order in which they were composed. Solo 400 was finished in August, 2016.

Certain notations for recorder should be mentioned. Recorder-glissando is notated by a straight segment between two notes, as in measures 10-12 of Solo 1. Violinists should play these as written, and flautists and oboists should substitute a slur. The words “big breath” for recorder has the same meaning for flute and oboe and indicate phrasing for violin.

Many of the compositions are based on hymn tunes, each of which has its own well established name. A few others are based on folk tunes. For both types, the name of the tune appears in capital letters between parentheses; as in “Solo 142 (SALVATION)” and “Solo 213 (GEORDIE)”.

Other solos have names that appear on the music, such as “Solo 363 Flight of a Nighthawk”. The names of some solos consists only of the form “Solo [number]”, but others are supplemented by words that appear only in the CONTENTS, not on the music, such as “Solo 2 Good Morning” and “Solo 324 Chromatic Fantasy #16”.

CONTENTS

In many cases, an extended name of a solo appears here but not on the solo page.

Levels range from 2 (advanced beginner) to 5 (advanced).

Except for modes (aeolian, dorian, etc), capital letters mean major keys; lower case, minor.

Compositions based on named pre-existing melodies are indicated like this: (OLNEY)

Pieces named "Echo" call for dynamic variation and staccatissimo.
