

THE HIGHLANDEIS SERENADE

Adapted to a Popular

Scotch Air

Partly Composed & Arranged for the

PIANO FORTE or HARP,

By

F. J. KLOSE.

BOSTON, Published by JAMES L. HEWITT & Co. at their Music Saloon N^o 36 Market St.

ANDANTE CON MOTO.

[181 - 7]

PIANO

FORTE.

Listen Jenny a' is still, save the dashing o' the fountain, save the murmur'ing

p

o' the rill, trickling frae the snaw topt mountain save the wanton breezes playing,

'mongst the trees around thy cot, E'en the moon her charms delaying yield i' darkness pp is forgot. Lovely maid ye've naught to fear, Listen Jenny love is near, pp Lovely maid ye've nought to fear, Listen Jenny, love is near.

2

3

Why that sign, that I must leave thee?
 Does my true love then offend?
 Dearest Jenny, oh believe me
 Death alone that love can end;
 Another sign! I understand it,
 'Tis your Father that ye fear;
 Dearest Jenny never mind it,
 He is deaf, and cannot hear.
 Lovely maid ye've nought to fear,
 Listen Jenny, love is near.

But your Mither loves us dearly,
 Let me then some token see,
 That you will next morning early
 Gang to kirk an' wed wi' me.
 Kiss your hand, an' whisper sweetly,
 "Donald I will soon be thine,"
 'Tis done! my bliss ye've crown'd completely:
 Dearest now I've naught to fear
 Weel I ken that love is near.