 Calls me no more with its sunshine gay, And mer-ry hues it used to Ea-ger I turned where the star of fame, Shone forth in distance clear and wear; And tho' the win-ter of age may blow, Sweet wear; Still I look back on my childhood hours, When bright: Quick-ly, too quick-ly the vi-sion fled, The mem'-ries of joy linger yet, Cheer-ing me on as they free as a wild bird I strayed, Life was a gar-den of lau-rels that gai-ly it wore, With-ered and sere o'er my mur-mur low, In tones the heart can ne'er for-get.

 fairest flowers, I thought would never, never fade.
 path were spread, A-las their beauties all were o'er.
