

FLORA'S QUEEN

Room! Room! for Flora's Queen!
So sang the nymphs and shepherds on a morn of May
In rustic roundelay:
Then was I ware of one enthroned on high,
Radiant in vesture and of noble mien,
At whose fair feet did many garlands lie
Of all the flowers that best be seen;
Cowslip and daffodil, and sweet woodbine
That tokens sympathy;
Whitethorn and primrose, and brave eglantine
That's for simplicity;
The gentle violet for modesty;
Lilies for purity and grace;
And chiefly there found place
England's red rose for strength and dignity.
Thus, singing still, the fields and flowers among
They passed, a gallant train,
And this the burden of the song they sung:
"Long live Victoria, long may she reign":
And hark! afar across the sea
From clime to clime
How kindred voices chime
Joining the glad refrain
In ever-swelling Harmony:
"Long live Victoria! Long may she reign."
