ACT I.—IN BETHULIA

SCENE I.

The interior of the town. ISRAELITES, PRIESTS, SOLDIERS and CHILDREN grouped about conversing together with despairing gestures. OZIAS and JUDITH among them.

Chorus of Israelites.

Proud Asshur's host! It fills
With chariot, horse and thrall
The valley 'neath our city's wall,
And swarms the distant hills.

Their number who can know?
Death tracks with sultry breath
The long, black path from Bectileth,
That breeds the fearful foe.

Can aught 'gainst these prevail?
Behold, how great their power!
Beneath their frown the nations cower!
Who dare such might assail?

Ozias.

Oh Israel, be not dismayed,
For God will quickly bring you aid!
Keep burning fires upon your towers,
Red blazing through the midnight hours!
Keep still at hand your swords and spears,
That when Jehovah's aid appears,
Ye may upon the hostile horde
Pour fire and death with torch and sword!

Ozias and Chorus.

His covenant He will keep
As long as we obey!
Their hosts, Jehovah, quickly slay!
Let not Thy vengeance sleep!

We scorn their marshalled powers,
Who have Thy name defied!
If Thou, O God, art on our side,
The victory is ours!

Exeunt OZIAS and CHORUS. JUDITH remains behind. She is dressed in the mourning of a widow.

SCENE II.

Judith.

O God, what bodings stir my troubled heart,
That from my quiet life I must depart
To seek yon horde!
For I, alone, see Judah's faith is slight,
And all the brutal cunning, and the might
Of Asshur's sword.

Though Judah wear away the siege's length,
The water-famine soon will sap her strength,
And she will fall.
Protect her in this hour of sorest need,
And for her sin, O let me, let me bleed,
But spare them all!

O show me, Lord, how I may save this land!
Make Thou mine arm its duty understand,
And keep me in the hollow of Thine hand
By Thy great might!

The storms of Asshur burst o'er
Judah's hills,
Their rolling thunder every valley
fills,
Like rain we fall.
O send us shelter from the fiery blast,
And clear the sky that death has overcast,
Spread Thy strong wings o'er us till storms are passed,
Yea, spare us all!

O show me, Lord, etc.

*Enter ACHIOR and ASSYRIAN SOLDIERS.
OZIAS and CHORUS return.*

SCENE III.

Achior.

Hark to Holofernes,
Asshur's mighty chief,
Captain of all armies!
Give his words belief!

Empty are your cisterns,
Dry each spring and well,
That e'er gave you water:
Yield, O Israel!

Yield, and Holofernes
Now will grant your lives,
Men of Bethulia,
Your children and your wives!

The Soldiers.

Yield, O Israel!

Achior.

But his wrath will leave you,
If you dare resist,
Bleaching bones and ashes
In the morning mist!

Open now your gateways,
All your passes yield,
Ere in desolation
Shall your doom be sealed!

Hark to Holofernes!
Tremble, prostrate fall!
Bow your heads to Asshur!
He is Lord of all!

The Soldiers.

Yield, O Israel!
Bow your heads to Asshur,
He is Lord of all!

Ozias.

Hence, ye slaves of Asshur, go!
Bid your haughty captain know:
Naught avails your countless horde,
That Jehovah is the Lord!

Achior.

Ye, who Holofernes scorn,
And the wrath of Asshur's frown,
Shall see the blazing of your towers,
And the ashes of your town.

Ozias.

Long as we his covenant keep,
Shall his vengeance never sleep!
Useless is your idle boast!
Quickly he will break your host!

Exeunt ACHIOR and ASSYRIANS. CHORUS gathering together again, come to OZIAS.

SCENE IV.

Chorus.

Alas! alas! Thou might'st have saved our lives!
Alas! Our children! Our children and our wives!
But now no hope! All hope is gone!
The blazing sky no pitying raindrop sheds!
The parched cisterns warp beneath the sun!
Ozias, water! water! Or we die!

Ozias.

Trust yet a while! In God Jehovah trust!
Yea, bear in mind His care for you of old!
The Lord will quickly come! Your covenant keep!
He, watching Israel, doth never sleep!

Chorus.

Curse thee, false priest, thou dost deceive!
Thy words are false, we will not believe!

Ozias.

For five days wait, and if at that time's end,
Jehovah doth not His assistance send,
To Asshur's power our vanquished heads we'll bend.

Chorus.

Curse thee, thou priest of every ill!
Our wells with water canst thou fill?

Ozias.

Heralds, go, to Holofernes hasten,
And beg he grant us mercy for five days,
Yea, grant us water; then, if God save not,
To Asshur's power we'll bow—his slaves.

Chorus.

Water! Water! Water!
For five days must we die?
Hail, Asshur, hail!
Jehovah has left us to die!
Hail, Asshur, hail!

JUDITH enters. She is gorgeously dressed, with flowers on her head and covered with jewels.

SCENE V.—The Vision of Judith.

Judith.

Stay, ye cowards, and hearken unto me, ye blasphemers! Hath not our God, Jehovah, been an ever-present help in trouble? Hath He not brought us out of the land of Egypt, and scattered our enemies and destroyed them? Hath He not given us bread in the wilderness, and shall He suffer us to perish with hunger? Repent ye! Repent ye your sins and your transgressions! The Lord Jehovah will forgive and deliver you! For behold! I have cried unto the Lord God Jehovah, and He hath heard my prayer! And I, even I, Judith, His servant, will deliver you from the hand of the tyrant and the oppressor.

With grief and lamentation, my lonely
couch I sought,
And as I lay in slumber, a wonder
there was wrought.
Behold, there came unto me from the dim world unseen
A vision of my lost one, with calm and radiant mien.
He spake, and with the accents of that beloved voice
A mighty thrill passed o'er me, my spirit did rejoice.
Fear not, he said, O Judith, thou brave
and faithful heart,
To save and bless thy people thou hast
been set apart.
For thou shalt slay the tyrant, e'en
with thy fair right arm,
And the God who reigns above thee shall protect thee from all harm.

So deck thy form with jewels, with flowers thy brow adorn,
Take not thy maidens with thee, but go forth with the morn.
To Asshur's camp betake thee! Let not thy courage fail!
Dishonor shall not harm thee, howe'er
the foe assail!
And when the hour cometh that sounds the tyrant's knell,
My spirit shall protect thee; beloved spouse, farewell!
The vision passed, and with it my soul with strength was filled,
My spirit was uplifted and every fear
was stilled.
Now, e'en as I was bidden, to Asshur's
camp I go;
Ye shall not see my face again till
Asshur is laid low!

FINALE.

Chorus.

And dost thou brave dishonor's stain?
There, naught but vile dishonor waits!
Nay, Judith, stay!
Vainly do we cry!
O Judith!
Thy name!
Dishonor! The stain! The stain!

Ozias.

Nay, go not, O Judith, stay!

Chorus.

Throw not thy life away!

Ozias.

Thou shalt but be their slave!

Chorus.

And lust digs every grave!

Ozias.

Yea, shame and death thy meed!

Chorus.

See, on our knees we plead!

Ozias.

For none will Asshur spare!

Chorus.

O Judith, hear our prayer!

Judith.

Unscathed I pass them by,
The Lord hath said the word.
The tyrant's end is nigh!
Jehovah's wrath is stirred!
And when the hour cometh that sounds
the tyrant's knell,
The heavenly power shall guard me through Asshur's tents! Farewell!

Chorus.

God Jehovah, we who sinned,
Faithless as the fickle wind,
For thine handmaid we implore
Thy protection evermore!

Let not Israel find the grave!
Let him not be Asshur's slave!
Let it be Thy will to spare!
God Jehovah, hear our prayer!

Chorus.

Speed thee on! Open the gates!
Open wide the gates!
Fare thee well! speed thee on!
Jehovah's aid awaits!
Go forth and smite the foe!
Go forth! Victorious go!
Go forth, thy people bless thy name!
Jehovah's proffered aid!
Thy spirit shines, a burning flame,
Though ours in ashes fade!

JUDITH goes out of the city gates and the people look after her.

Chorus.

May He lend His mighty arm
Safe to keep Thee from all harm!
May it be His will to spare!
God Jehovah, hear our prayer!

CURTAIN.

ACT II.

FIRST TABLEAU. SCENE I.

Chorus of SOLDIERS, CAMP-FOLLOWERS and CAPTIVE HEBREWS.

Soldiers.

Keen blades of wrath,
With lust of blood ye gleam!
Flames mark your path,
And still the victims scream!

All hail! Raman! Bel Marduk, hail!
Red death looks wan at the bodies ye impale!

Scythe-armed before,
Chariots are sweeping,
Carnage is deepening,
Corpses full heaping.
Harvests of gore
Nergal is reaping.

Then charge, ye men of blood!
And give your blades their food!
Hail, Asshur, hail!
Hail, mighty Baäl!

Scaling-ladders, like to adders,
Raise their lengths against the walls.
Blindly lighting, fiercely fighting,
Till the foe-strewn ramparts fall!

Loud and long then hear Death laughing,

Streams of blood to Asshur quaffing,
While he grasps with greedy hold
The captured city's heavy gold.

Hail, Raman, hail, Raman!

Hark the shouting, o'er the routing,
Hail, Raman and Nergal, hail!
Women shrieking, garments reeking,
Swell the praise of mighty Baäl!

Nebuchodonosor, hail!
Swell the praise of mighty Baäl!

Captive Hebrews.

In slavery's chains we lie,
Doomed captives waiting death.
The hunger wastes our fevered breath,
Till one by one we die.

Woe! Woe! One by one we faint and die!

The CAMP-FOLLOWERS (ridiculing the captives).

Let Israel perish never,

Let Judah's Gods prevail!

Ha! ha! ha! —

In shackles live for ever,

Nor cease your plaintive wail!

Ah, ha! ha! ha! —

Come, drink the health of Judah,
There's victory in the vine!

Ah, ha! ha!—

Subdue the base intruder
With cups of ruby wine!
Ah, ha! ha! ha!

Scorn not our fervid kisses,
The victor's chief delight!
Ah, ha! ha! ha!

Asshur, hail! hail! hail!
Holofernes, hail!

The Captive Hebrews.

In slavery's chains we lie, etc.—

SCENE II.

Holofernes (entering).

The king sends forth his sword;
With me is all his might
To smite his foes abroad,
To blast them day and night!
And leave their broken bones abhorred,
By friend and foe alike ignored,
A prey for wolf and kite.

I stretchèd forth my hand,
The Medes all bent the knee,
I frowned along the land
And Tyre sank by the sea.
Far Egypt's dry and breathless sands,
Beneath my rage and dread commands,
A gory pool shall be!

Mine anger once awake,
When slaughter nerves my wrist,
Let earth in terror quake!
Naught can my power resist!
Nor blood nor fire my wrath can slake,
Till round the charred impaling-stake
Grim death has fed full grist.

SCENE III.

Holofernes, Achior, and Soldiers.

Behold! Achior, the Ammonite, comes!
He bows before thy feet!

Holofernes.

Stand forth, ye Ammonites returned from Bethulia, and tell me what they are who dare resist.

Soldiers.

Hail, Asshur! Hail!

Achior.

Let my lord now hear the answer of his servant's mouth!
Leave to thirsting death these people,
hiding to the South!
For they serve a God, Jehovah, who doth never sleep,
Watching o'er His chosen people, while
His law they keep!

Chorus.

What is this? what is this the Am-monite saith? Is not Asshur God?

Achior.

All the ages while they served him,
Israel prospered well.
Only when their hearts forsook him
Sinful Judah fell.

Craft alone can bring Jehovah
To defeat and shame;—
Tempt their hearts, for thou canst never Overcome His name!

Chorus.

Traitor!
Coward! Down with him!
Down with the craven coward!
Death to the craven coward!

Holofernes.

Now by my head, I swear! their insolence beneath my foot I'll grind into the dust! Art thou an Ammonite?
Slave! Coward! Traitor! Jew! From the dust shalt thou arise no more!
Chains! Iron! Bind him! A log about his neck! And he shall know that Asshur, he is God!

Chorus.

Hail, Asshur! Hail! He is God!

Achior.

Mercy! Mercy grant me, Holofernes!
Pity thou my groans!
Baäl, their irons rend and break me!
Gods, they crush my bones!

Chorus.

Down with him! Traitor! Slave!
Away, traitor!
Down with him!

Holofernes.

Bear Achior forth, and cast him at their city's gate! With them, it is my will he feel my wrath, and know who is the Lord!

Chorus.

Death to the Ammonite!
Death! Death! Death!

(They drag ACHIOR out with violence.)

SCENE IV.

JUDITH, HOLOFERNES, SENTINEL, SOL-DIERS, and CAPTIVE HEBREWS.

The Captives.

Who is it yonder comes from out the vale?
A woman, see! From her garments,
from Judea!
The sentinels surround her, on up the hill they come!
How dignified her mien!
A woman high in Israel!
'Tis Judith!
Alas! Alas!
Ah, noblest of Judah's women!
The palm-tree of mighty Judah!
Why comes she alone to the camp of
the foe?
Why did she leave the walls of the city?
Trusted she here to find human pity?
Never will sun rise to light thee
hither!
Never the day that leads thy steps
thither!
Ever in shame, thy beauty shall
wither!
Judith, our fairest, Judith, the pure!

Enter JUDITH.

Judith.

Peace, peace! Jehovah will protect me!

Holofernes (gruffly).

What woman's voice is that?

Sentinel.

'Tis a Jewish woman taken in the vale,
And she is passing fair.

Holofernes.

She is fair? 'Tis well! Let her approach!

Fair Jewish women may my mercy gain.

Soldiers.

Behold, a goddess comes!
What wealth of raven hair!
For her who would not dare the war-
god's wrath?
By Ashtoreth, her poise!
How lithe, tall and straight!
Her raiment hides
Yet half reveals her form!
See the jewels on her arms!
What radiance! how they shine!
How goddess-like she walks!
Majestic is her mien!
A queen! A very queen!

Holofernes.

Woman, who art thou? for thou art beautiful!

Judith.

My name is Judith, in Bethulia was
I born.

Holofernes.

High favor shalt that find in Holofernes' house! And honor in the court of Nabuchodonosor!

Judith.

My lord is great. All Asshur's host is in his hand!
In thee alone is Asshur's strength!
Thou art his mighty arm!

Holofernes.

Accursed shall all the tribe of Judah be! But thou shalt be exalted high at Asshur's court, thou fairest one!
for none is like to thee!

Judith.

My lord is great, his will rules
Asshur's host!

Holofernes.

Come, feast with me to-night!

Judith (startled).

My lord!

Holofernes.

I love thee, and would make thee
mine!

Judith (aside).

Jehovah, save me!
Save me in my husband's love, pure and unstained!
Thou reignest above!

(To Holofernes.)

Lord, most mighty, grant me now a boon!

Let me go, at midnight and at noon,
Safely through the sentinels and lines,
Down the valley yonder midst the pines!

There to pray unto my people's God,
Lest He strike me with displeasure's rod!

Let me not incur Jehovah's ire:
Grant thy servant, lord, this one desire!

Holofernes.

Have thy prayer, thou fairest of thy race,
Have thou thy wish, as I my heart's desire!

Judith.

God, strengthen Thou my heart!
Save me from disgrace!

Holofernes (to an attendant).

Attend her as the daughter of a king! Thy life shall guarantee her sumptuous state! Freely, also, shall she pass the guards, to go forth down the valley, there to pray. And curse and tortured be the Jewish God, if he refuse this beauteous woman's prayers! than Ishtar's own divinest self more fair, more ravishing! more beautiful! To-night! To-night! To-night!

SECOND TABLEAU. SCENE V.

Before the tent of HOLOFERNES. SENTINEL pacing up and down. Music and sounds of revelry from interior of tent.

JUDITH, SENTINEL, and CHORUS.

Judith.

What revelry! An orgy at its height!—The vile Assyrian lords!—Their ribald jests!—How boldly will they leer on my distress!—The women's voices, and their wanton laugh!—The wild, loose strains they sing! (Perceiving the guard.) The sentinel!

CHORUS (from interior of the tent).

Frenzied the flower-wreaths round her fling, fresh flowers fling.
Quaffing the golden cups they bring, the slave-girls bring!
Dances the fire-light in the wine, the ruby wine!
Fair gleaming limbs in the draperies shine! A moment shine!—Ah!

Sentinel.

Who is it wanders round the tent?
Whom dost thou seek?

Judith.

Judith, for whom the captain sent,
would with him speak.

SCENE VI.

SENTINEL, throwing back the curtains of the tent, disclosing the interior. Tables covered with flowers and antique gold and silver vessels. HOLOFERNES and his officers reclining on couches. Female slaves pouring wine.

All hail, Holofernes! The woman of Judah approaches!

Holofernes (coming down).

Gods! Welcome without measure!
When was such beauty seen?
Fair princess of my pleasure!
Kneel, slaves, salute your queen!

Chorus.

Welcome without measure!
We hail thee, beauteous queen!

Judith.

Thy welcome is too fervent,
Too great will be my debt.
Such honor for thy servant
Thou surely wilt regret.

Holofernes.

No humble place shall hide thee!
This honor be thy least!
Come, sit on the dais beside me!
Yea, fair one, join the feast!

Chorus.

Come, taste the dance's wild desire!
Come, touch thy lips with passion's fire!
Come, join our laughing, wanton throng!
While Ishtar woos with wine and song!

Holofernes.

Dost scorn this rich collation?
Wouldst thou be further woo'd?

Judith.

The strict law of my nation
Forbiddeth Asshur's food!

Holofernes.

The wish thou cravest, tell me—
Speak, and 'tis thine own!

Judith.

Great lord, else thou compel me,
I would serve thee, alone.

Holofernes (aside).

How subtly she confesses!
Her wish to mine inclines!

(To the Slaves.)

Depart! Hence! Leave me! All!
I would be here alone!

Chorus.

Come, come, taste the dance's, etc.

(Chorus exit.)

Holofernes.

Come, yield to love's delight! Fair woman, come!
I love thee, and I would press thee
in my arms!

Judith.

Nay, for I am a Hebrew, gracious lord!
E'en one of those whom thou thyself would slay.
Thy favor is too great for such as I!

Holofernes.

Thou art a queen by right in beau-
ty's line,
And naught shall be denied for thy delight!

Judith.

Nay, I am but a Hebrew widow. Lord, Make not the women point at me with scorn,
Until thou hast o'ercome the Jewish coast!

Holofernes.

Thou art too beautiful!
Ah, dally not,
Or wherefore, lovely woman, didst
thou come?

Judith.

O hearken to my words, most mighty
lord,
Thy servant would find favor in thy sight.

The burning drought devoured my people,
Gaunt famine stalked in every street,
Till now the temple-sacrifices
The famished people eat.
Yea, even from the temple wine-jars
They cool their fever's thirsty heat!
But these are sacred to Jehovah,
To touch them seals their pending doom!

I decked myself, I hastened to thee,
Before the town became a tomb.

Holofernes.

This meat-robed Jewish God I'll worship,
I swear upon my priestly head!
His fortresses shall be the altars,
The sacrifice, His Jewish dead!

Come, for my priestly duties crown me!
Come, bind my temples with thy hair!
Come, wreath thy snowy arms around
me,
Thou Jewess, beautiful and fair!

Judith (aside).

What awful doom, O God!
Such blasphemy must bring!
'Twill fall not only on his head,
But humble Asshur's king!

(To Holofernes.)

The wasted plains declare thy power,
Behold, thy hosts filled all the North,
Thy ponderous blade doth sway this
hour,
Thy splendor and fame are gone forth!
I saw how the Israelites fear thee,
The nations thy praises repeat.
Thy servant, dear lord, would be near thee,
She came to seek grace at thy feet.

Holofernes.

The wasted plains declare my power!
Behold, my hosts fill all the North!
My ponderous blade doth sway this
hour,
My splendor and fame goeth forth!

Judith.

Enough for me that I am near thee,
And find such favor at thy feet.

Holofernes.

Come, kiss me, come, with wine I'll cheer thee
And by my side shall be thy seat.

Judith.

It is too much, my lord!

Holofernes (with increasing impatience).
No honor is too much,
Then what shall buy those lips?
Have all thy soul!
What wilt thou have? This ring?
These jewels? Take them all!

Judith (aside).

The falchion! See, the sword!

Holofernes (overhearing).

The sword! 'Tis jewelled pricelessly!
All Persia is not worth that hilt.
But take it. It is thine!

Judith.

A pretty thing!
But where is wine to celebrate thy might?
Thou need'st thy sword no more!

Holofernes.

Be all my power thine!
Thou hast it now!

(Angrily.)

Then kiss me, come, thou dost delay too long!

Judith.

Then first pour out the great libation.
Drink, mighty chief, the bowl of wine!
Come, as a priest take thou thy station,
While I, thy cup-bearer, take mine.
A pledge, a pledge, to fill up all my heart!

(Holding up cup to him.)

Holofernes.

Thee, fairest Hebrew, and our joy!
(Drinks.)

Judith (demurely).

Ah, soon thou'l cast me off,
The scorn of all thy host!

Holofernes.

Nay, thou shalt still be mine!
More will I give to thee than dowered e'er a queen.

Judith.

Thou'l never send me forth?
O tell me, gracious lord!
(He sits on the couch; she kneels at his feet.)

Holofernes (he is gradually overcome by the wine).

Afar on the plains of the Tigris,
Where naught but the honey-bee
roams,
Shall blossom in jewels mine Iris,
Palm-shaded 'neath crystalline domes.

Far off o'er the meadows of flowers,
That drink all the tints of the vine,
The clouds shall drop pearls in their showers,
And the brooks shall run red with pure wine.

Soft music shall waft from the towers,
And perfumes their heaviness shed,
Through the golden Assyrian hours,
Where my fairest shall dream on her bed

Dreams of love, dreams of bliss,
In the moonlight's soft kiss.

Far away, by night and day,
Far from war, O may I be,
Far from all save wine and thee.

Judith.

A single cup to crown the night!
This ruby tankard!
Canst thou take so deep a draught?
Drink! Drink! I give it thee!
(He takes the cup, drinking during the pauses in his song.)

Holofernes (maudlin).

Far away, etc.

Judith (aside).

Aye, far away! Ere dawn of day,
Far from thy power, O may I be!
From thy thick wine!
Far from thee!

Holofernes.

Far away by night and day, etc.
(He sinks unconscious on the couch.)

Judith (sotto voce).

At last! At last! He sleeps!
The time is near!

(Rising.)

Jehovah, strengthen thou my fainting hand!
Have mercy, Lord! No more can I endure
His brutal lust, his impious regard,
His vile caresses, and his loathsome smiles!
Have I not yet my people's sin atoned?
Have I not yet their pardon fully gained?
Said not the vision, "thy fair arm shall slay?"
Thy hand shall save Judah; now God, point the way.

(Perceiving the sword.)

His falchion gleams in the torches' red light.
He gave me the sword that shall slay him to-night.
Come, falchion, come!
Thou gleamest in my sight.
Mine, thou art mine!
And all Asshur's might!

At last let the price of the faithless be paid!

(She takes the sword in both hands and strikes HOLOFERNES three times. At the third stroke the head rolls away.)

Jehovah, now bring me Thy mercy and aid!
Tyrant! Oppressor! Lie bare to my sword!
And Judah I save when I slay him, O Lord!
Jehovah, Thy mercy! Judah is free!

(Falls on her knees.)

The Sentinel (outside).

All's well! and midnight is the hour!
(JUDITH rises, conceals the head of HOLOFERNES under her mantle, and goes out of the tent.)

Fairest Judith, according to my lord's command, safely pass!
Go thou to make thy prayer unto the God of thy people!
All's well! All's well! All's well!

ACT III.

Outside the Walls of Bethulia.

SCENE I.—OZIAS kneeling on the wall.

Ozias.

The sun, up o'er the East a burning gleam.
Stand still, thou lamp of Joshua!
quench thy beam,
Unless thou rise to bring Jehovah's aid
To Bethulia's dark, besiegèd glade!

O God, dispel our grief!
O send us now relief!
Send victory with this rising sun!
Leave not a foe when day is done!

The sun thou gavest, Lord, to rule the day,
The darkness thus dividing from the light!
From us, O let that sun divide the night!
That else must take all light and life away.

SCENE II.—OZIAS, JUDITH, and CHORUS.

Judith (in the distance).

Ozias!

Ozias.

What do I hear? A voice!

Judith (nearer).

Ozias! Hear!
Open the gates!

Ozias (in great excitement).

'Tis Judith's voice!
Awake! Rejoice!
Praised be Jehovah's name!
Her mantle flutters with her haste!
Up the hill she comes!

Judith (still nearer).

Shout! Summon the people together!
The Lord smites the foe as of old!

Chorus (entering hurriedly through the gates in the wall. They swarm about JUDITH as she enters.)

Awake! Rejoice!
Judith returns!
Come hither, Israel's children!
Fling wide the gates!
And welcome Judith in!

Judith.

The Lord hath sent deliverance,
And saved His chosen land!
The Lord hath smitten Asshur's host,
E'en with His own right hand!

Chorus.

What! Is the tyrant dead!

Judith.

He is—and Asshur!

See, the head!

(Holds up the head of HOLOFERNES.)
The monster wo'd me for my shame—I filled his cup with wine!
The monster wo'd me for my shame—
But by Jehovah's holy name
That wine with blood besmeared his fame,
And kept disgrace from mine!

Chorus.

Let all the earth His mercy know!
He guards His chosen race
From all the fury of the foe.
Untouched by shame, defeat, or woe,
He saves us from disgrace!

Judith.

The monster lured me to disgrace,
I smiled with laughing eyes.
The monster lured me to disgrace,
But boldly gazing on my face
He soon forgot my haughty race,
And yonder now he lies!

Chorus.

Let all the earth His mercy know, etc.

Judith.

The monster wo'd with foul intent—I took his jewelled sword!
The monster wo'd with foul intent—
But red the torch-light in the tent
As 'cross his drunken throat it went,
And blood with wine was strangely
blent—

Jehovah be adored!

Chorus.

O noblest of Judah's women!
The palm-tree of mighty Judah!
Hail, coming at dawn from the camp
of the foe!
Dark was the day that led thee forth
thither!
Glorious the sun now lights thy way
hither!
Darker the night that heard not our wailing!
Glorious, resplendent, thy victory hailing!

Ne'er shall thy fame in all the earth
wither!

Judith victorious!

Judith, all hail!

Praise, adoration, worship, praise

Unto Jehovah's name!

Let all the hillside echoes raise

The glories of His name.

SCENE III.

Enter ACHIOR in the garb of an Israelite.

Achior.

Now, by the gods, I surely know
Jehovah is the Lord!
Him will I serve in weal or woe,
For He should be adored!

Judith.

O come, thou faithful warrior, come!
And join Jehovah's band!
He smites the vain blasphemers dumb,
And guards His chosen land.

Ozias.

Yea, truly is Jehovah God,
In spite of Asshur's boast,
For I have seen the gory head
Of all their mighty host.

FINALE.

Judith (recitative).

Then hang his head on your towers!
Defiantly there let it swing!
To arms! Rise! Assemble your powers
In the might of Jehovah, our King!
He to his own, 'gainst fearful odds,
Triumphant glory brings!
Jehovah, God of all the gods,
And King of all the kings!

Chorus.

To arms! To arms! Sweep forth upon
the foe!
To arms! To arms! Avenging blow
for blow!
Pour down upon the headless band!
Drive forth the slaves from out the land!
The sword and spear and buckler don!
Jehovah leads His people on!

He to his own, etc.

CURTAIN.
